

Credit Card Transaction Policy

For the convenience of its patrons, the Taylorville Public Library provides the option of paying library bills and fees with a credit or debit card. The Library is subject to compliance with all laws, statutes and reasonable terms and conditions associated with accepting these credit cards. The Library does not charge a fee for credit card use.

Credit and debit cards may be used to pay for most library fees. These include payments for lost or damaged materials, library fee cards, and other transactions. Credit and debit cards will not be accepted if the total amount due is less than five dollars. Instead, these charges will be added to the borrower's library account or the remaining amount can be issued as a credit on their account to make up for the five dollar minimum.
